WELCOME NEW FACULTY
Elizabeth McCord, MD – Elizabeth McCord completed her residency in Internal Medicine and Psychiatry at Emory University in 2020. She then served as the Ambulatory Chief Resident for the Emory Internal Medicine Residency Program in 2021. She returned to training to complete a fellowship in Addiction Psychiatry at Emory and is now on faculty in their Psychiatry Department. Her primary clinical and scholarly focus is the treatment of addiction through an integrative approach, developed from her background in both Internal Medicine and Psychiatry.

Reema Dedania, MD – Reema Dedania graduated from Emory College in 2010 and then stayed at Emory to complete her Master of Public Health degree at the Rollins School of Public Health. After a whirlwind of training and working in various cities (medical school at Creighton, general adult psychiatry residency at Vanderbilt, a staff psychiatrist position at an OCD clinic for two years and Case Western for a forensic psychiatry fellowship), she is now returning to Emory.

At Emory, Reema will be working in the Psychiatry & Law Service as the associate training director for the Forensic Psychiatry Fellowship. In her role as medical director of the Fulton County Jail Competency Restoration pod, she supervises fellows treating patients at the jail and performing pre-trial evaluations; she also supervises fellows who treat inmates at the Atlanta City Detention Center. Patient populations that are of special interest to her from both a clinical and research perspective are immigrants and refugees seeking asylum.

In addition to Reema’s forensic role, she is an outpatient psychiatrist at The Emory Clinic with a focus of working with patients who have Obsessive Compulsive Disorder. Other areas of interest to her include medical student education and psychiatry in the media.

DISC UPDATES

Yom Kippur – Betsy Gard, PhD, Adjunct Professor – The Holiest Day of the Jewish Holidays, Yom Kippur is known as “the day of atonement” for those of the Jewish faith as it is the day to ask for forgiveness for the cleansing of sins that have distanced the person from God. In the days between Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur, the individual is to make amends and ask for forgiveness from people they have wounded or sinned against. Yom Kippur heightens the need to acknowledge one’s sins and confess guilt both as an individual and as a community for not living up to one’s best self. Yom Kippur is commemorated by abstaining from work and self-adornment, fasting from sundown to sundown, attending services, and putting the spiritual self above the physical self. Some refer to the Day of Atonement as the day of “At-one-meant” as it is the day to heighten one’s connection to God and one’s spiritual self.

World Mental Health Day – Justin Palanci, MD, Assistant Professor – World Mental Health Day was established by the World Health Organization to raise awareness of mental health issues worldwide and mobilize efforts in support of mental health. The Day provides an opportunity for all those working on mental health issues to talk about their work, and what more needs to be done to make mental health care a reality for people around the world. Recognized on October 10th, this year’s theme is “Make mental health & well-being for all a global priority.” The Day provides an opportunity to re-kindle our efforts to protect and improve mental health. The WHO implores us to deepen the value we give to mental health as individuals, communities and governments and match that value with greater commitment, engagement, and investment by all stakeholders. We must strengthen mental health care so that the full spectrum of mental health needs is met through a community-based network of accessible, affordable, and quality services and supports. The WHO envisions a world in which mental health is valued, promoted, and protected; where everyone has an equal opportunity to enjoy mental health and to exercise their human rights; and where everyone can access the mental health care they need. Diwali/Deepawali – Sohba Fritz, PhD, Assistant Professor – “THE FESTIVAL OF LIGHTS”, Diwali is celebrated by those of Hindu, Sikh, or Jain faith. It tends to be fall on the day of the new moon, which can occur in October or November. This year, Diwali falls on October 24. Diwali is often referred to as the festival of lights and signifies the triumph of good over evil and light over darkness. The day before Diwali, the house is cleaned and decorated with beautiful designs called Rangoli. During Diwali, prayers are offered to Goddess Lakshmi, the Goddess of Wealth, for good fortune. Diyas (clay lamps/candles) are lit to signify the lamps that lit the path for Rama, a reincarnation of the God Vishnu, to return home after being exiled; Rama slayed the demon King, Ravana, signifying the triumph of good over evil. New clothes are purchased, sweets and gifts are shared, and fireworks are lit in celebration. Diwali is a special time for families to gather and celebrate. Personally, Diwali is a holiday that my family gets excited about each year. We decorate our driveway and walkway with Rangoli patterns and decorate the inside of our home with hand-painted diyas. We make the traditional Indian sweet, peda, and share it with friends and neighbors. Our family tradition is to watch the beautiful fireworks display at the BAPS temple in Lilburn.
